HOW TO DO MORE BUSINESS.
MANY AMERICANS have built up great commercial enterprises, by the use of Trade-name items supplied by our CLIPPING BUREAU. Chinese merchants can do the same if they follow American methods.

We clip business news from more than 50,000 papers monthly, and send them items to you while there is good prospect of supplying what is needed and doing business.

We can send you news and clippings on any line of business, or any subject, and you will be able to know, IN TRUTH, just what American business methods are like, and where there are openings for Chinese merchants.

Suppose, for instance, you are a maker of Pottery: our Clipping Bureau might find in some paper an item saying that a big wholesale Pottery concern was being organized in a certain town—i.e., of course, should send you that business-news item, and give you a chance to do business with that firm.

We can do just the same in any line of business; for there is always something being done that it might pay Chinese merchants to know.

We can supply you with advertisements of all the great American merchants and manufacturers, so that you may estimate their ideas and increase your business in China the way we do here.

To avoid delay, send ten dollars (Max.) for one month's trial order. Subsequent rates can be determined according to service.
It won't cost any money to send for our fine Book which tells all about our service and how much it costs. Send for it today.

WRECK OF THE LARACHE.
Pitiable Scenes.

Coruna, June 26.
One by one the pitiable features of the wreck of the Larache are becoming known, the sad story constituting one of the most tragic episodes in the record of shipwrecks off this dangerous part of the Spanish coast. A striking narrative is that of the second officer, who says he was leaving the bridge, at the same time, remarking to the pilot the proximity of the Brullas rocks, when there was a crash and a shock, followed by a scene of terrifying confusion, while frantic shrieks were heard on every side. The vessel sank entirely in six minutes. A few sailors lowered a small boat and picked up the body of the captain, who had plunged overboard nude, shouting wildly, "I am dying. Good-bye my wife!
Good-bye my children!" There were 132 people on board and the total number of deaths is 90, 65 passengers and 25 out of a crew of 52.

One striking feature of the work of rescue was the tender humanity of the fishermen, who stripped themselves of overalls and coats in order to cover the trembling women as they were landed, the poor creatures not having had time to dress themselves. The inhabitants of Muros also vied with each other in rendering assistance to the survivors. The vessel was going at a speed of 12 miles an hour when she struck.

Bodies from the Larache are being washed ashore, together with portions of her cargo, and there is great difficulty in establishing the identity of the victims owing to the absence of clothing.

Harrowing scenes were witnessed as the vessel struck. Lifebelts and planks of wood were fought for, even knives and revolvers being used. One passenger had two lifebelts and refused to give one up.
His selfishness was of no avail, for he perished with both. The cries from women facing death as they pressed their children to their bosoms were heartrending. More than forty passengers were unable to reach the deck, and their death-cries, as the water rushed in on them, were mingled with the confusion on deck. Some women asked a fireman for lifebelts, and on one being handed to them a deadly struggle ensued for its possession. By others the nearest object was grasped that appeared to afford a hope of life, and the victims were washed over the sides of the ship clinging to all kinds of articles. One poor woman, a third-class passenger, was seen sinking with four children clinging to her.
In addition to the captain, the chaplain, the doctor, the first engineer (an Englishman named Thomson), and the third engineer perished. A wealthy family comprising father and mother, and four daughters were washed overboard together, clinging each other to the last. They struggled frantically in the waves, and only the mother and one daughter were saved.

There are many contradictory statements as to the cause of the wreck. Experts insist on affirming that the course steered by the Larache, even if she escaped the Ximela shoals, would have brought her on to the Mixidos shoals, where the Spanish warship, the Cardinal Cisneros, recently foundered. There was no fog. The steamer must have passed close to the Brullas rocks. On the charts the depth of the Ximela shoals is marked three fathoms, but in reality it is less. The Coruna Salvage Company at once sent a steamer to render assistance, and divers who were sent down found the bridge at 17 fathoms and the hull at 25 fathoms. The Marquis de Comillas, managing owner of the Spanish Transatlantic line, has telegraphed to the agents to spare no expense in assisting survivors. Touching scenes were witnessed at the church at Muros. All the survivors were present at the religious ceremony which was held, where the most pathetic figures were those of the mother and daughter already alluded to.

LATER.
The steamer Coruna has just arrived from Muros bringing the survivors. The authorities and the people of Coruna are showing the greatest kindness to the hapless passengers. I have interviewed several of them, whose stories all confirm the details I have given above.

HONGKONG, MONDAY, AUGUST 3, 1908.

CHINA AND JAPAN.

We are at one with those who sincerely desire to see the bringing about of the re-establishment of harmonious relations, political and commercial, between the empires of China and Japan. Bickering between neighbours are never edifying in the domestic arena of life but when indulged in by neighbouring nations they are apt to develop dangerous potentialsities. There is no gaudy fact, deplorable though it be, that a very miserable state of petty bickering has existed in the Far East almost from the moment of the signing of the treaty of peace at Portsmouth in New Hampshire which closed the unhappy conflict between Russia and Japan, and unfortunately some of these petty trivialities have been pursued almost beyond the danger point. But the time has surely come when a happier state of things can be inaugurated and we hope that Baron Komura when he returns from the Court of St. James and resumes his old place at the Foreign Office in Tokyo will be able to bring about that which Baron Hayashi with all his suavity, broad-mindedness and intense sympathy failed to accomplish.

China has long since abandoned the contemptuous attitude of mind which once caused Japan a good deal of heart-burning. In the days prior to the China-Japan war of 1894 the statement and liberality of the older empire undoubtedly viewed the Japanese with a pitiful kind of contempt. They held the invaders to be renegades backsliders from the ancient traditions of the Oriental hegemony when they went in for the new learning, evolved a modern system of government, adapted western theories of law to their old customs, remodelled their commercial system to conform with latter-day requirements, and in fact struck out a new line for themselves. But the troubles which have befallen China during the past decade have caused her to modify her views considerably and she has grasped the fact that it would have been better for her had she too begun of her own volition to set her house in order to meet the requirements of the new situation, instead of waiting until her hands were forced by the irresistible pressure of events. Curiously enough it was the study of the Chinese classics during the early decades of the nineteenth century which first set Japan's foot towards the new ways. The nation was being prepared for the changes inaugurated in the Era of Enlightened Government long before Commodore

Perry's black ships anchored off Uraga, and it was from China more than from the few Dutch books which came in through the little back window at Deshima that Japanese thinkers and scholars drew their inspiration and deduced the theories which their successors have so cleverly put into practice. To this day Japanese scholars delight in the Chinese classics. Their public speakers use Chinese quotations to round off their periods, point their illustrations, drive home their arguments and generally adorn their eloquence just as Gladstone and the men of his day drew on the writers and philosophers of Greece and Rome. Japan in many aspects of the time still sits at the feet of the Chinese sages of antiquity, and nothing has hurt this highly sensitive people more than the manner in which China has met her advances and misinterpreted her motives. Of course there have been faults on both sides; Japan has sinned as well as China. She has pressed her views perhaps too harshly at times; failed to comprehend all the difficulties of the questions which have arisen between them; might have yielded gracefully on others. But—of this we are certain—at no time since the close of 1904 has she been more ready to let bygones be bygones and to hold out the olive branch to her ancient teacher and nearest neighbour. It will be a happy day for both nations when the statesmen and merchants of China and Japan fully realize that mutual interests demand they should be sincere friends with one another.

MILITARY MATTERS.

"Kowloon" in his interesting letter printed in our columns on Saturday undoubtedly made out a strong case against the military matches. But there is always two sides to a question.

The matches as evolved by Hongkong builders after several decades of practical experience is not a miserable makeshift by any means. It is cool in summer, warm in winter and can be made an exceedingly comfortable place of residence. Barring extraordinary climatic contingencies it keeps out bad weather very satisfactorily. A severe typhoon will, however, always level such a structure to the ground, more especially if erected on an exposed site like that at Kowloon. And herein the most serious question in regard to it arises. A match put up to accommodate Indian troops is by no means a cheap affair, and under favourable circumstances is good for a life of ten years at least. What the Powers that be have to consider is whether it would be more economical to continue the of matches and run the risk of an occasional bad typhoon, or to invest a considerable sum of money in building

Shipping.
